

Key Learning

- To know a story needs to include characters and a setting
- To know that there are three main parts to a story – beginning, middle and end
- To know the beginning of the story introduces the characters and setting
- To know the middle of the story needs a problem – what has gone wrong?
- To know the end of the story explains how the story finishes

Previous learning:

- Write recognisable letters, most of which are correctly formed
- Spell words by identifying sounds in them and representing the sounds with a letter or letters
- Write simple phrases and sentences that can be read by others.

Key Vocabulary

story	character	setting
beginning	middle	end
problem

Suggested Texts

- The Tiger Who Came to Tea by Judith Kerr
- Dogger by Shirley Hughes
- Whatever Next? by Jill Murphy
- Naughty Bus by Jan and Jerry Oke
- Amazing Grace by Mary Hoffman

Organisation for your writing

Feature	Tick
You have a clear beginning and end to the story
Your sentences are written in time order
Your story is written in past tense.
Your story is written in the 3 rd person.
You have used capital letters and full stops throughout.

